

Call for Registration

Registration is now open for the Oxford Scientiae conference, 5-7 July 2016. The plenary speakers are: Prof Martin Kemp (Oxford), Prof Wouter J. Hanegraaff (Amsterdam) and Prof Tara Nummedal (Brown). The lead convener is Dr Georgiana D. Hedesan (Oxford), the conference adviser is Prof Howard Hotson (Oxford), and the conference committee includes Karen Hollewand (Oxford), Cornelis J. Schilt (Sussex/Oxford) and Dr Luca Guariento (Glasgow). For more information on the conference, see <http://scientiae.co.uk/oxford-2016/>.

Scientiae is a new international research group at the nexus of Renaissance/early modern studies and history/philosophy of science. The group's main activity is the organisation of a yearly conference, alternating between North America, UK, and continental Europe. The Scientiae series of conferences, first begun in 2012, is growing every year, and the Oxford conference will be the largest and most prestigious meeting yet: we expect to gather c.170-180 researchers of early modern science and knowledge. For further information on Scientiae see <http://scientiae.co.uk/>.

The registration page can be found at <http://scientiae.co.uk/conference-registration/>. The link should provide you with the information you need to register, including conference fee (£125) and options for the conference dinner and accommodation. Site-based accommodation at St Anne's College is limited, so please register early. Please also be mindful that there is a late registration charge that applies from 1st of June 2016, and that we will not accept any form of registration after 1 July 2016.

Please address any queries to scientiae.oxford@gmail.com.